These incidents illustrate some of the short turns of politics. The strategy of these strug-gles for the ascondency is little clse than w tricky, transparent and inconsistent game. Col. Cook, special counsel for the postoffice department in the star route cases, is a very foolish man. He should have met Brudy's deman I for immediate trial with a plain and dis nified statement of his grounds for delay and not with a bombastic flourish which means nothing. He should have based his refusal of immediate trial upon facts in the case and confined his statement to expression of them. The president, the attorney general and the head of the postal department are quite able to blow their own horns and needed no help from Col. Cook. Further, Braily's request that his comsel be permitted to examine the records of the department with reference to matters affecting his easo, was certainly reasonable and should have been allowed with proper precautions for the preservation and; safety of such records. In denying this request Cook acted uninetly and his boyish and taunting talk is discreditable to him and to the postoffice department.

The London Spectator ossays to correct what it calls a contions misunderstanding in the public mind as to what was expected of the revised new testament. What was actually wanted, it says, was some new translation, -not necessarily for adoption in our churches, -to which men'of all denominations not acquainted with the original Greek could durn. the true meaning of the best text of the original Greek actually is. Under this view the preservation of passages undexed to English FLAGS! associations by their beauty and rythm was not a necessary requirement. Of course this would imply that the new version, is and expected to supercede the one so long in use. But that it is only to in used as a help to it. Many English journals think this to be the irue point of view from whit, to ernicise the new version.

It is certain that nobody ever did, and probable that nobody ever could, make a more sill; ass of himself than the fellow, who runs, Mrs. Newell's paper at Walla Walla has done about the Portland election. He calls if a "prent Mitchell victory," and guelos over it in a col-umn of characteristic validity and inapity. It will be interesting, if not amusing, to not a few people here to learn that Mitchell was the force behind the regular republican ticket.
